

Husband willing to swap eye for wife's operation

GRASS VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Herbert Gibboney is offering to sell one of his eyes so he can pay for an operation his wife needs.

"It isn't pleasant to watch your wife suffer and realize you can't do a thing about it," said Gibboney, 58, who took out a newspaper ad asking $35,000 cash plus the cost of an operation to transfer the cornea.

"There has to be somebody with a lot of money who has a son, daughter or wife who needs an eye. I don't think it is too much to ask."

Mrs. Gibboney, 54, said she needs a second bone graft operation to restore part of her jaw that was eaten away by tumors. The bone graft from the first operation two years ago at UCLA Medical Center didn't take, she said.

The couple still owes money on the first operation which cost $20,000; the second will cost about the same, the couple said.

Gibboney, who is only able to work 10 hours a week cleaning a restaurant because of a heart condition, receives $210 a month in Social Security. The couple used to own a cocktail lounge.

"He didn't tell me he was going to sell an eye," Mrs. Gibboney said Friday. "It was quite a shock when he showed me the ad. I told him, 'It's my problem. Let me sell my eye,' but he's so stubborn. He just said, 'We'll get by okay with three eyes between us.'"

"I don't like the idea, of course, but when you're desperate it was very hard for my husband to watch me go to bed crying every night from the pain."

"It's kind of rough, but we're not asking for handouts or special concessions. We want to pay our own way."

Since the ad ran this week in the Grass Valley Union, Mrs. Gibboney said they have had quite a few phone calls from around the state, "but we've had no offers yet, I mean nothing tangible."

Gibboney said he offered to sell his eye to a clinic.

"They want me to give it to them when I'm dead," he said. "When I'm dead I won't need it. They can have both my eyes when I'm dead."

Attorneys argue Willard conflict charge

By LENNY INGRASSIA

Conflict of interest charges were argued in Lee County Court Friday afternoon against a teacher and his Dixon School Board member wife, however neither defendant was present during the 2½-hour hearing.

State's Atty. Patrick Ward, who filed the complaint against Mrs. Judith Willard, her husband Merlin Willard, an English teacher at Dixon High School; and the Dixon Board of Education, pleaded his case before Associate Judge Martin D. Hill.

Ward filed the complaint July 10, 1974, after a mandate, issued to the Willards, calling for one or the other's resignation, was ignored.

Mrs. Willard was seated on the school board following the April elections.

Testifying under questioning from Ward, Supt. of Schools Stanley Weber related Mrs. Willard was covered by health insurance paid for by the district while she was a member of the board. Mrs. Willard was taken off her husband's policy on Sept. 3, 1974, more than four months after she was elected.

Ward claimed, "She had a direct interest in the hospitalization policy and continues to hold a vested interest in her husband's life-insurance policy."

Mrs. Willard is named as beneficiary of the school-paid policy.

The state's attorney argued Mrs. Willard as a board member is "interested both directly and indirectly in contracts between the board and her husband concerning salaries, working conditions and fringe benefits."

A second witness called by Ward, School Board President James E. Dixon, testified Mrs. Willard voices a "pass" vote on any issues involving contractual agreements with the teachers. Dixon testified Mrs. Willard did not participate in any manner with negotiations on the current teachers contract, under cross-examination from Willard's attorney Robert W. Deffenbaugh, Springfield. Weber had testified earlier that she did not vote on the contract but did sit in on the discussions "but did not participate."

Concerning teacher evaluation sessions, which are held annually to determine a teacher's progress and future salary increments, Dixon said, "I have no idea what position she (Mrs. Willard) will take concerning her husband." Decisions regarding teachers' progress and any disciplinary action against teachers is left with the school board.

In an unexpected move, School Board Attorney Allen Schwartz, Chicago, quizzed Dixon on the number of times Mrs. Willard had voiced "pass" votes or abstained from voting on teacher issues. After Dixon answered "every time any teacher issue came up," Deffenbaugh, emotion-filled, jumped to his feet, expounding "Whose side are you on?" Facing the court, he continued, "If he's going to change horses here I'm caught totally by surprise—he's trying to discredit Mrs. Willard with his questioning of this witness. I'm going to move for a continuance."

The continuance was denied by Judge Hill.

In summation, Deffenbaugh reasoned "this issue is not unusual— all over the state we have board members whose husbands or wives are employed by the same district and there is no direct prohibition of this in the school codes. This issue is up to the legislators to change, not the courts."

He continued: "There has been no evidence here today of her voting on anything of which she would benefit from—if anything, she lost some benefits by being dropped from the health insurance. Merlin (Willard) gets no exclusive benefits he wouldn't have gotten were she not on the board," he concluded.

Schwartz told the court his clients, the school board, "ask only that if Mrs. Willard is found in conflict that the board is not punished because of her vote on any issue."

Judge Hill took the case under advisement with a ruling to be handed down at a later date.

Were Mrs. Willard found in conflict and forced to resign her school board post, the board would have the authority to appoint an interim board member to fill her vacancy. Deffenbaugh represents the Illinois Education Association in its defense of Mrs. Willard.

Cargo ban underway

WASHINGTON (AP) — A pilot-imposed ban on carrying hazardous cargo in passenger airliners went into effect today, but first reports said no flights were delayed.

The 32,000-member Air Line

Pilots Association (ALPA) invoked the ban at midnight Friday after it said it had been unable to get the federal government to tighten regulation on air transportation of hazardous materials.

United Airlines, the nation's largest domestic air carrier, said it had agreed to ban non-medical radioactive shipments for a month but would continue to carry other cargo the pilots consider hazardous.

An ALPA spokesman replied, "There may well be delays because the pilots are sure going to have it removed."

There were no reports of delays during the first hours of the ban, however.

Under the embargo, ALPA said its members, who fly for all U.S. airlines except American Airlines, were refusing to transport some 1,400 varieties of radioactive materials, explosives, gases, flammables and bacteriological agents.

Exempted from the ban were short-lived radioactive isotopes for medical research and diagnosis, dry ice and properly packaged magnetic materials.

ALPA President John J. O'Donnell said the embargo, first announced more than two months ago, was imposed because the pilots had been unable to reach a satisfactory settlement with the Department of Transportation. He noted that his group had objected to the government's regulations on hazardous cargo for more than 10 years.

Meanwhile, the Environmental Protection Agency said Friday that it has urged the Federal Aviation Administration to tighten its standards to protect airline passengers from exposure to radiation.

Death toll heavy in Asmara strike

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — House-to-house fighting broke out today between government troops and well-armed Eritrean separatists in Asmara, according to reports from the northern provincial capital.

The toll of dead and wounded was believed heavy, but hospital reports no casualty figures.

The guerrillas assaulted three government military installations Friday night. Shooting resumed about 7 a.m. today and spread throughout the city of 250,000 near the Red Sea coast.

Residents ran indoors, closing their shutters, as mortars, rockets and machineguns opened up along palm-shaded main streets patrolled by tanks and armored cars.

"I could hear shooting over the telephone. It sounded like full-scale war," said an Ethiopian who made contact with friends in Asmara, 450 miles north of here.

The U.S. consulate was considering whether to evacuate 300 American technicians, businessmen, missionaries and Navy personnel.

The Muslim Eritrean Liberation Front (ELF) and the Marxist Popular Liberation Front (PLF) have been battling for 12 years to free the province from Ethiopia. Eritrean nationalists claim cultural differences with other Ethiopians. They claim the dominant Coptic Christians have suppressed Eritrea's large Moslem population.

Observers said the assaults could be the start of a long-expected showdown between the rebels and the military rulers who overthrew Emperor Haile Selassie last September.

Hours after the fighting broke out, ELF leader Osman Saleh Sabbi said in Beirut that it was "just the beginning" and that heavier strikes would follow.

"We shall pin down the entire 2nd (government) division and all other reinforcements sent by Ethiopia's military junta. We shall even cut off Ethiopia's entire sea communications with the rest of the world," Sabbi told a reporter.

Sabbi said Libya has given the rebels $15 million worth of arms making them capable of launching attacks into Ethiopia proper.

The guerrillas, who already control most of the Eritrean countryside, were reported inside Asmara in large numbers. The Asmara airport was closed, and a 7 p.m.-to-7 a.m. curfew was in effect.

About 30 Americans, including U.S. Consul Robert Perry and some children, were watching movies Friday night in a social club on the Ethiopian 2nd Army division's Kagnew base when the rebels ambushed units of the division and assaulted the base.

Ford budgets $52 billion deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Painting his bleakest picture yet of the nation's economy, President Ford asked Congress today to approve a record peacetime budget deficit of $52 billion for 1976 to help end the worsening recession.

Ford noted his long-time opposition to deficit spending, but told Congress that "if the economic recovery does not begin soon, the Treasury will lose anticipated receipts and incur even larger deficits in the future."

His budget for fiscal 1976, which begins July 1, calls for federal expenditures totaling $349.4 billion—up from an estimated $313.4 billion in 1975—and receipts totaling $297.5 billion—up from $278.8 billion this year.

The back-to-back deficits for 1975 and 1976 would total $86.5 billion and raise the federal debt to $605.9 billion, equal to $2,840 for every American.

Ford's budget predicts a difficult time ahead for Americans, with a painfully slow recovery from the current recession. It forecasts an average unemployment rate of 8.1 per cent this year, 7.9 per cent next year and possibly 6.9 per cent in 1977.

The cost of living will increase an average 11.3 per cent this year, up from 1974, according to the budget, and the nation's Gross National Product will decline another 3.3 per cent this year, worse than the 2.2 per cent drop in 1974.

Ford told Congress his budget provides "decisive action to restore economic growth and energy self-reliance."

It includes $10 billion in tax cuts, which Ford had announced previously, on top of $6 billion for 1975—part of his package to stimulate the economy by giving people more money to spend.

It also incorporates his $30-billion energy-price-increase program—to be offset by an additional $30 billion in tax cuts—and provides $18.8 billion for jobless benefits and public service employment.

Nuclear talks opened

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union today opened full-scale talks on filling out the Vladivostok summit accord limiting offensive nuclear arsenals.

U.S. delegate U. Alexis Johnson and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Semenov and their aides met at the Soviet mission, posed briefly for pictures in a small conference room, then started the closed-door talks. The negotiators met for 80 minutes on Friday.

Today's talks lasted two hours and Johnson and Semenov decided to resume their discussions next Tuesday at the U.S. delegation offices in Geneva. No details of the talks were given.

The decision to open substantive talks today was apparently a compromise. Johnson reportedly wanted to begin on Tuesday while Semenov pressed to get down to work Friday afternoon. It was the first time a weekend meeting was scheduled since this phase of the strategic arms negotiations began in November 1972.

The talks will build on the accord reached last Nov. 23 at Vladivostok by President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev limiting numbers of missiles and bombers.

The Vladivostok pact pledged each side to limit the intercontinental ballistic missiles — ICBMs, submarine-launched missiles and heavy bombers to 2,400 and to equip no more than 1,320 missiles with multiple independently targetable warheads — or MIRVs.

In Washington, the Air Force confirmed Friday that it has suspended installation of multiple warheads on 50 Minute-man ICBMs, apparently because of an unresolved issue in the negotiations here.

The officials did not specify why the action was taken.

But administration sources said the decision concerned the matter of verifying compliance with the Vladivostok limits on MIRV-carrying missiles.

Also to be worked out here are what types of missiles and bombers will be included under the Vladivostok ceilings.

The talks are expected to end in a second strategic arms limitation treaty — or SALT II. Brezhnev and former President Richard M. Nixon signed the first treaty, SALT I.

Four-harness loom is mastered by Dixon gal

Miles and miles of yarn and thread, each moving systematically as each pedal is pushed, creating a certain unique pattern. One slight mistake and a whole coverlet is ruined or a new pattern even more attractive than before is created. Each time the yarn is pushed across the delicate row of threads, another part of the design is added. How is this done, people ask?

It is done by Mrs. James Higby, 915 S. Ottawa, on her four-harness weaving loom.

From the first date of ordering the loom, a Canadian product, Mrs. Higby waited between nine and ten months before all parts of the loom arrived at her home and were assembled. The loom, different from most looms people are used to seeing in the encyclopedia, is far more compact and does not have an overhead piece making it awkward to work with.

Mrs. Higby's first interest in weaving came from watching her sister weave. Having an interest in working with fabrics also added to her desire to have the loom.

The basic techniques of weaving on the loom were taught to Mrs. Higby by her sister. Mrs. Higby is now planning to take a course in weaving offered at Kishwaukee College, with hopes of taking a spinning wheel and natural dyeing course at a later date.

The loom itself is made from cherry wood and cost more than $300 by the time shipping and all parts of the loom had arrived. The loom will be taken to Sauk Valley College and set up during the Festival of the Arts for area people to watch it being operated by Mrs. Higby. Many different things can be made with the loom including wall hangings, coverlettes, rugs, and even clothing.

The Arts Festival is scheduled at Sauk Valley College Feb. 8 and 9 and is under the leadership of the Sauk Valley Arts Council.

New political party needed

Inflation is the No. 1 difficulty, for it creates unemployment, increases prices and can be stopped only by Congress. It will grow more in the next couple years. The people who did not vote allowed the socialists to be elected by union bosses.

It looks like this problem can only be solved by a new party or the American Party. Whichever group advances must assure the voter that the people running for office will be strictly conservative and all socialists be ruled out of the party. The voters are so disgusted with deceitful politicians they do not know whom to vote for.

If a new party platform contained some of the following ideas they could attract many conservatives.

A person could serve only one term of four years. Senators allowed two terms of four years each, while representatives could serve four terms of two years each, and no more for any office. Most people when they go into politics desire to promote the United States in a conservative way. After a few years in office they realize the value and want to continue for the rest of their life. They will then do anything to hang on to the job that pays such a large salary, brings benefits, donations that are given them and the power to pass laws making the people of America do what Congress says. You can think of many other advantages to the people in limiting the time a politician can be in office.

If all taxes on manufacturing and business were annulled they could reduce expenses more than one-third. Corporations do not pay taxes, they know what the government will charge them so add it on to the cost of their product, which the buyer pays. All my life I remember politicians saying they will make the rich corporations pay the tax so it will relieve the people. They were just trying to fool the people so they would vote for them. It also gives the politicians more money to spend. If these taxes were eliminated, their products would be one-third cheaper. That would mean you could buy the same amount for one-third less. It would mean business would be begging for help to supply the products the citizens would want. The foreign market would want more of our products. You can think of many other advantages.

All cash fines be eliminated. Wrongdoers would serve time in jail or a work detail. They would spend the nights in jail and the days working for the cities or counties. If you attended a party, had a few drinks, it would be best to take a taxi home instead of running the risk of being arrested and tested for alcohol, which would send one to jail. The city could build a new airport or city hall with this cheap help.

The voting privilege would be given only to those paying federal taxes. Taxpayers are the ones who furnish the money to operate the government. What are the advantages, for you can think of many.

The long, long tunnel

By DON OAKLEY

It is like the replay of a bad dream.

Two years after "peace with honor," South Vietnam is reeling under widespread and sustained North Vietnamese offensives. President Ford has called for a $300-million step-up in arms aid in addition to $700 million already authorized for this year, and he and his secretary of defense have warned Hanoi that the United States will not stand idly by and see South Vietnam go under.

The antiwar demonstrators are back in the streets of Washington and the voice of the extremist is once again heard in the land.

"American opinion historically has reacted in anger to outright aggression, unprovoked massive attacks," said Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger the other day. "Congress under these circumstances might well authorize the use of American force."

From the other side: "Quite clearly, the United States is the reason for the bloody struggle that goes on," said Bishop John Burt of the Ohio Episcopal Diocese and participant in something called the Assembly to Save the Peace Agreement, conveniently ignoring the fact that no South Vietnamese soldiers have ever invaded North Vietnam.

Quite as clearly, the American people are not buying either viewpoint. They know who was and is the instigator of war in Vietnam, but they also know in their guts that 55,000 American lives and who can count how many billions of dollars are enough. If South Vietnam cannot defend itself after all that America has done for it, then it never will be able to.

The popular mood is reflected in Congress, where it is not just the traditional doves who oppose an increase in military aid and who, Schlesinger to the contrary, will certainly not countenance the return of American military personnel. They have the lessons of the past 10 years to support them.

Yet the South Vietnamese are fighting well, we are told. It is not lack of will but lack of means. They did not surrender at Phouc Binh, the first provincial capital to fall since 1972, but were overwhelmed. Their air force is virtually grounded because of a shortage of fuel and spare parts. Their artillery has but a handful of rounds. They sustained 120,000 casualties last year.

Not so the North Vietnamese. They have been massively rearmed by Russia and China. The Ho Chi Minh Trail, safe from American bombers, is now a four-lane highway, down which flows the wherewithal of war in unceasing stream.

We have heard it all before: Just a few more planes, tanks, guns. Just a little more effort. The light at the end of the tunnel.

And again from the other side: The Thieu regime is corrupt, dictatorial, not worthy of being saved. It is Saigon that violated the peace agreement.

Yet the refugees continue to flee—southward, not northward.

It is tempting to believe that just a few more billions, one more show of American resolve, will salvage something from this endless and unspeakably tragic conflict. Can we stand aside and watch what little chance for freedom exists in Indo China be overwhelmed by communism when mere money could prevent it?

But we have been lied to so much before. We have seen the "best and brightest" men in our government adopt the tactics of the enemy, we have seen our young men debased, the nation's honor stained at places like My Lai. We should never have gotten involved in that vicious war. Let us at long last be done with it entirely.

Yes, we are nearing the end of some kind of tunnel. But there is no light. Only darkness.

Israel losing U.S. support?

American support for Israel, come what may, is not an immutable fact of life. This is the gist of President Ford's recent comments on the Arab-Israeli issue.

Mr. Ford, who had been pounced on last October when his tongue slipped over a Palestinian complexity, was careful to say nothing this time that anybody could take exception to. Asked if there were any limits on America's commitment to Israel, he replied:

"It so happens that there is a substantial relationship at the present time between our national security interests and those of Israel. But in the final analysis we have to judge what is in our national interest above any and all other considerations."

The hypothetical man from Mars would find it hard to detect any dynamite in that. But he would not have been waiting, like so many others have, ever since the Arab-Israeli war in 1967, for the moment when the United States begins to put real muscle behind the argument that Israel cannot expect peace while remaining in occupation of the great bulk of the Arab land it conquered in 1967.

"If only the United States were to put pressure on Israel..." The dying fall of this over-familiar refrain has played out countless discussions on how a Middle East settlement might be reached. So much rumor of pressure, so much denial, and in the end, despite Israel's small-scale withdrawals in the aftermath of the October, 1973, war, mighty little evidence of any.

President Ford is signalling that the moment has not yet fully arrived, that sentiment in the United States is still pro-Israel, but that the storehouse of goodwill for Israel, particularly inside the Administration, is being eaten away by hardliners and second-best resolutions inside Israel itself.

Mr. Ford betrayed a little of the impatience that has been mounting in the Administration; asked about an American guarantee for Israel, he replied "We have given everything except that." And Israel's possible courses of action are beginning to narrow. The situation, as Mr. Ford said, is too dangerous to do nothing.

There have been strong hints that Israel would forfeit the administration's support if it were to strike first. So unless the Arabs strike (which at this stage would be about the most self-destructive thing they could do) the pressure is on for substantive negotiation.

The immediate issue is how much Israel is prepared to give back to Egypt in a second-stage interim agreement. Israel's foreign minister and deputy prime minister, Yigal Allon, was in Washington this week discussing just that. If the new drift toward war is to be jerked back, Israel's next withdrawal offer will probably have to include the Sinai mountain passes at Mitla and Giddi, as well as the Abu Rudeis oilfields on the western Sinai coast that now supply 60 per cent of Israel's oil. Then there is the important question of Egypt's counterpart offer.

But whatever may be worked out on paper, Israel's main recompense would be the fact that Egypt, once it is securely in control of the Suez canal and struggling to make some money out of it, would become an even more hesitant potential combatant than it is now.

Nobody questions the toughness of the problems. Israel would do best to confront them diplomatically of its own volition, not just because the United States Pushes It To Do So. But now the question is whether Ford and Kissinger will have the nerve, in the face of domestic opposition, to stop arguing with Israel's leaders and start a little pushing.

Quite apart from how easily American arms can be obtained, there are a number of negative ways—say, a hint that Jewish unofficial funds to Israel might be taxed—in which America can push. Positively, there could be a formal guarantee of Israel's security (but not the swollen post-1967 Israel). Ford stalled on this, and the Israelis have not asked for it. But if the President now plucks up the courage to oblige Israel's ruler to do what they would not do on their own, his concomitant obligation is to underwrite the risk.

Campaign finance law bogs down

WASHINGTON (LENS)— The new year ushered in a new law on campaign finance and a new body to enforce it, the Federal Election Commission. Both got off to a shaky start.

The White House and the leader of the Senate and the House of Representatives are each to nominate two members to make up the six member commission, evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans. Only the Senate leaders have acted, nominating a former campaign treasurer of Sen. Mike Mansfield, the Democratic leader, and a Pennsylvania Republican, the choice of the Republican leader, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania. Already there is criticism that the commission will merely become a haven for patronage appointees and former members of Congress.

The White House and the Republican leaders in the House are under strong party pressure to make their choices from all those Republican members defeated in November. Meanwhile the trade unions are pushing the House Democratic leaders to choose someone to their liking.

The special interests seem to be elbowing their way back. The 1974 campaign finance bill authorized $5 million for the commission to live on. But so far Congress shows no signs of appropriating it.

The law itself is under fire in the courts. Sen. James Buckley (R-N.Y.) and former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, an unlikely duo, have filed a joint suit alleging that it is unconstitutional on a number of grounds but principally because, they say, it infringes freedom of speech. Money talks and, so the suit reasons, the new limits on giving to, and spending by, a political candidate are a curb on self-expression.

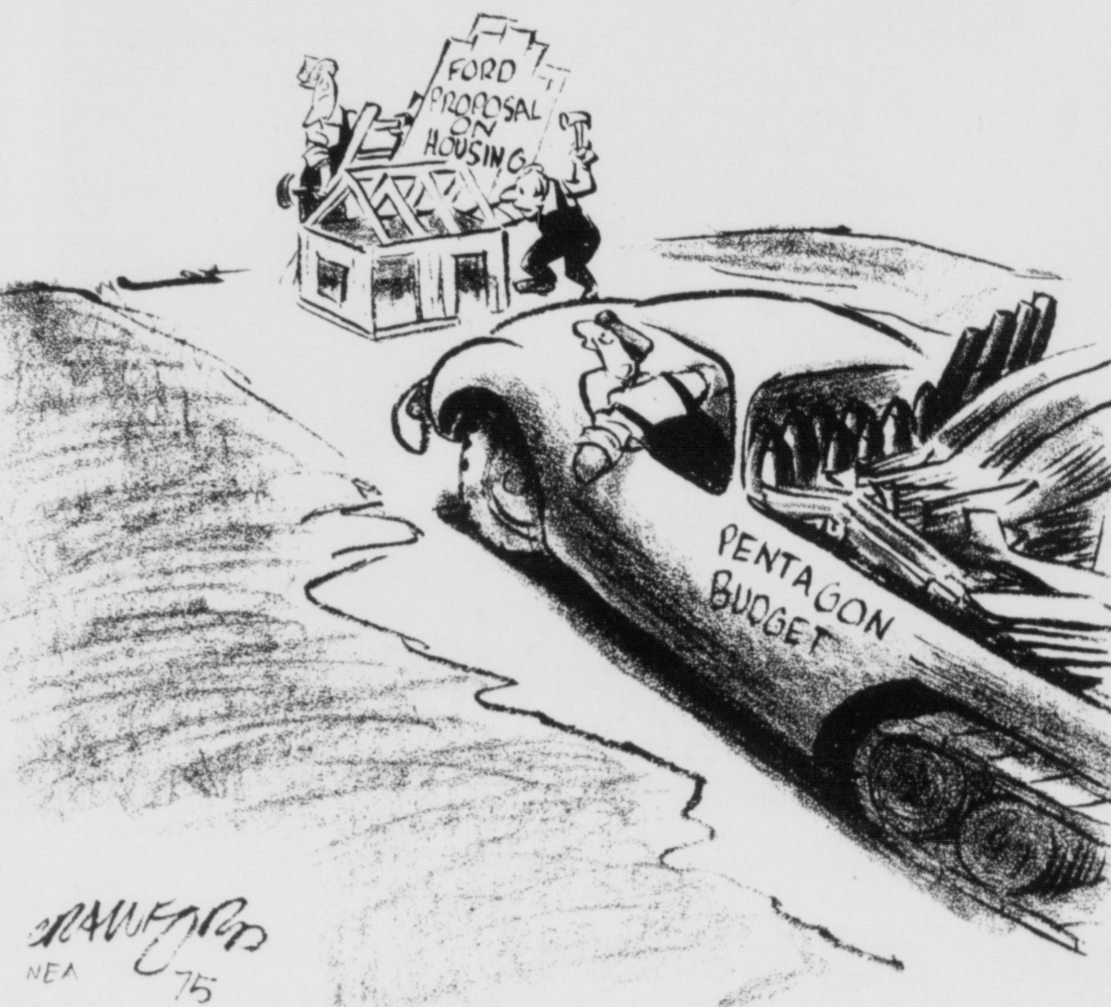

The provision of public funds for presidential primary and general elections may also be challenged, on the grounds that a taxpayer should not have to fork out for someone whose politics he detests and that there is insufficient provision for third parties.

First to be affected by the new law are next year's presidential aspirants: so far only the Democratic nomination is being openly contested. Just as happened before the 1971 campaign finance law came into force, there has been a last minute gold rush into some candidates' coffers to beat the Jan. 1 deadline.

Ironically, the only two candidates to have officially cut the ribbon on their campaigns—Governor Jimmy Carter of Georgia and Rep. Morris Udall (D-Ariz)—are doing much less well than those who have not formally declared their candidacy, notably Sens. Henry Jackson and Lloyd Bentsen and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

Gov. Carter has accused the two senators of drumming up, in the dying weeks of 1974, donations well in excess of the new limits. The senators deny this. But Sen. Jackson admitted, on Jan. 6, raising $1.1 million in the second half of 1974.

Indeed, it would be surprising if presidential candidates were not making an early start for 1976, because the new law requires that the $100,000 private fund that is needed to qualify for a matching public subsidy must come from at least 20 states and it also rules out a large spurge of big contributions that a candidate, successful in the early primary elections, could usually count on.

"Can't you see I've got the right of way, Mac?"

Spuds to the rescue of a hungry world

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON (NEA)— Whenever a member of Congress begins an oration designed in whole or part to promote something of benefit to his constituency, ears all over the nation quite naturally close. Perhaps this is why a recent floor speech by Democrat Orval Hansen has been so vigorously ignored. Hansen, after all, is from Idaho and he spoke on behalf of (what else?) the potato industry.

But in this case, perhaps, the political flackery is justifiable and deserving of an attentive audience. For what's good for the potato people, in Hansen's view, may be good for people around the world. Hansen is convinced that the short-term answer to the worst effects of global hunger is the potato; his thesis is so simple and obvious that he just may be right.

"American potato growers had a good year this year," he says, "the crop is 12 per cent higher than 1973." Thus, unlike the wheat, corn or soybean industry, "we could easily make our surplus potato production available as emergency food aid without creating supply and price problems for the American consumer. Americans want to help, but they want to help in a way that will not be injurious to their own interests. The dehydrated potato is an ideal solution."

Right now, adds Hansen, even as an estimated 10,000 of the world's people die daily from starvation or the effects of malnutrition, the potato industry is readying some of its surplus for use in cattle feedlots. The Hansen idea is to ready it instead for despairing human beings in African and South Asia.

In the case of potato granules alone, he says, "the nation's five production plants could produce 50-million pounds above normal domestic requirements, if they were pressed into peak production. This would mean some 1.5 billion servings for famine victims, or enough to feed a million of the most seriously deprived for at least a few months."

And fed they would be, according to Hansen and other potato proponents. Despite the occasional image of the spud as little else than a blah conglomerate of starch and calories, the industry evidence is otherwise. Robert Mercer of the National Potato Promotion Board, a quasigovernmental agency that is presently deep into an information campaign designed to "put the potato in a correct perspective," the tuber is a dandy food, in fact of nature's most complete.

It has more iron than spinach, nearly as much protein as milk; and since even its skin can be eaten ("put a little butter on it roasted") it is ideal from the standpoint of efficiency.

It doesn't, admittedly, have the romance of grain or the universality of soybeans. Actually, to the past few centuries, it was in places such as Europe not chewed but eschewed; Europeans thought of it vaguely as an aphrodisiac (because of its bisexual reproductive qualities) but not as a food staple. Even now the spud is only an occasional dish in many areas of the world; Americans and other Western nations consume plenty, often in the form of chips or fries, but greater numbers of people prefer rice on their plates.

No matter the image or the acceptability, however. As Hansen says, "If it's the only thing between them and starvation, if they're used to digging up roots to survive, the potato would be welcomed anywhere." No doubt. Even in the United States, families that a few years ago voided the tuber as a fattening expendable, now eat greater portions because it is a reasonable alternative, in this case to high prices not hunger, the price per serving of spuds being only about four cents.

There you have it then, says Hansen. The potato, relatively cheap, easily grown, in plentiful supply and also, in one-gallon tins, convenient to transport. It's not a very lovely thing, but it could conceivably save the lives of millions—that is, if the ears of the nation and the hearts as well would open.

'Duke' turns attention to New York

By PAT MILTON
NEW YORK (AP) — "I have always been concerned about the image that the United States casts abroad. Now I am concerned with the face this city presents to itself as well as to visitors," says former U.S. diplomat Angier Biddle Duke.

Since his appointment by Mayor Abe Beame as a dollar-a-year Commissioner of the Department of Civic Affairs and Public Events Duke, who has the permanent title of Ambassador, has been devoting his energies and expertise to the city of New York.

In this post he is responsible for special events throughout the city and for greeting official visitors.

"I only greet those visitors who are on an official visit," says Duke. "That is, those who have all expenses paid for by the United States. There are very few," he adds. "In Nixon's period there weren't any. Now world leaders are coming to this country to size up President Ford."

Recently the city played host to the President of Italy and the Chancellor of Austria.

The lean, impeccably tailored 59-year-old heir to the Duke Tobacco fortune is a veteran diplomat. President Truman named him Ambassador to El Salvador in 1952, and thus at 36 he became the youngest person up to that time to be named Ambassador for the United States.

"When I was appointed Ambassador to Salvador," says Duke, "that was probably one of the happiest times of my life. It was marvelous because it wasn't too scary. Salvador is a sovereign nation, but it isn't the Soviet Union."

Later, in the 1960s "Angie" Duke was the familiar-looking fellow with the aquiline, aristocratic nose and thinning hair who appeared in newspaper photographs presenting an arriving potentate to the President. His hands were usually clasped solemnly behind him in an American variation of what protocol buffs have come to call the Prince Philip walk.

Duke was appointed Chief of Protocol in 1961 by President Kennedy, a post he accepted only after much deliberation. President Kennedy called Duke into his office and told him he was to be Chief of Protocol.

"Angie, why do you look so unenthusiastic?" asked Kennedy.

"I told him," says Duke, "that I thought protocol had something to do with Emily Post's etiquette, and that was not for me."

The President explained to Duke that he wanted someone who would work with visitors and get to know them and report back to him.

ANGIER BIDDLE DUKE

Duke was still a bit hesitant. "Now what don't you like about it, Angie?" Kennedy asked.

"The title," Duke replied. "Well for heavens sake, Angie," Kennedy said, "change it."

Kennedy later sent Duke word that he would be called the traditional Chief of Protocol but with the permanent rank of Ambassador.

Duke played down the traditional "cookie pusher" aspect of the job and fought instead for better housing and more civilized greetings for Africans and other black diplomats arriving in Washington.

Probably the biggest challenge of his career, says Ambassador Duke, was arranging President Kennedy's funeral. "It happened so fast. The pressures and crush were so overwhelming. You couldn't do any planning," he recalls.

Duke moved on in 1965 to serve as Ambassador to Spain, where the unflappable diplomat swam in the Mediterranean Sea to demonstrate to the people of that country that the crash of a U.S. nuclear bomber had left no trace of radioactivity.

In 1968 he was named Ambassador to Denmark, a post he left in 1969 to become chairman of an international investment firm in London.

"I don't have any plans or desires to accept another post overseas, or in Washington or Albany," he says. "I am looking forward to applying what I have learned abroad to our community here in New York."

His wife, Robin Chandler Lynn, is active in civic affairs as national cochairman of the Population Crisis Committee and was a delegate to the international food conference in Rome.

The Dukes love the theater, weekends in Southampton and jogging along the East River, an activity the trim Ambassador says he indulges in at least three times a week.

"This is a city which does enjoy itself," he says, "and we are thrilled to be back after 14 years."

Miss Cristi Wright weds Mr. Pals

MT. MORRIS—The Church of the Brethren was the setting for the recent marriage of Miss Cristi Wright, daughter of the Robert C. Wrights, Mt. Morris, to Randy W. Pals, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle O. Pals, Egan.

The Rev. James E. Scorgie officiated as vows were exchanged by the couple before an altar decorated with lighted candles and bouquets of roses and chrysanthemums.

Musicians Robert Knodle, organist for the double-ring service, accompanied the vocalist, Miss Nancy Barnhart.

For her wedding, the bride selected an empire gown of ivory crepe fashioned with a bodice of peau d'Ange lace featuring a wedding-ring collar and bishop sleeves with cuffs of ruffled lace. The gown's A-line skirt was accented by two hemline rows of lace and a chapel train, and her full-length veil of two illusion tiers was attached to a lace Juliet bonnet. The opal ring she wore was a gift from the bridegroom, and as she approached the altar with her father, she carried a bouquet of roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Miss Terri Goley was the bride's maid of honor, and Mrs. Barbara Smith, Flanagan, served as bridesmatron. Their identical empire gowns of red satin were designed with ruffled necklines, tapered sleeves and hemline ruffles. Their headresses were matching satin picture hats, and their bouquets combined white chrysanthemums, red roses and holly.

Attending Mr. Pals as best man was Robert Zellers, Leaf River; Alan Pals, Egan, was his brother's groomsmen, and ushering was done by Gary Pals, Egan, also a brother of the bridegroom, and Charles Wright, Leaf River.

The candlelight service was followed by a reception in the church social hall when Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Doyle acted as hosts, and 200 guests were registered by Miss Sheila Smith, Oregon.

A four-tiered cake, decorated with fresh red roses and topped by figures of a bridal couple, was served by Miss Cindy Wilson and Miss Terri Meline, and presiding at the coffee service and punch bowl were Miss Vicki Pals and Miss Darcie Schelling. In charge of the gift table were Miss Char Wright and Miss Sherry Wright.

Rehearsal Dinner Members of the wedding party were entertained at a rehearsal dinner hosted by the bridegroom's parents in the Silo Restaurant, Oregon, and the bride was guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower given by the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Mildred Newman, Rockford.

The new Mrs. Pals is a 1974 graduate of Mt. Morris High School, and her husband graduated in 1973 from Leaf River High School. They are presently residing on Rt. 1, Egan.

Polly's Pointers

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY — I washed some white polyester uniforms, a blazer and slacks at the laundromat and put them in the dryer set at "LOW." They are ruined as the wrinkles will not come out. The attendant at the laundromat did them over. I took them to the store where they were bought for advice on removing the wrinkles. I washed them and hung them up dripping wet and also tried pressing them while damp. But nothing works. Could someone give me some help? — J. P.

DEAR J.P. — You really are in a mess. Were there laundry instructions on your garments and did you follow them to the letter? It sounds as if they were left in the dryer too long.

A recommended way for laundering such garments is to wash in warm water and rinse in cool with fabric softener added. Do not overload the machine but have plenty of room for circulation of garments. Set dryer on the special cycle for permanent press which has a cooling-down period at the end. Also avoid an overloaded dryer as clothes must move freely. When cycle ends, remove garments IMMEDIATELY. As a last resort you might try taking yours to the dry cleaner, to be pressed. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns elastic. I buy a garment the right size, then wash it and the elastic shrinks. I think all such elastic should be preshrunk as we use it so much in everything from baby's clothes to Grandpa's shorts. — R.P.S.

DEAR R.P.S. — My Pet Peeve would be just the opposite as I find so much of the elastic I have in clothes stretches out much too soon after a few washings. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — After buying new clothes for a trip, be sure to wear everything at least once before packing. You will find that a button that needs adjusting, someplace that needs a tuck for a better fit or whether the length is just right for you. When a coat is to be worn over a certain dress, try on both at once to be sure the lengths are right.

This also helps do away with that self-conscious feeling one often has when wearing something new. You become accustomed to the feel of it and do not appear as though you'd gone out and bought everything new for the trip. If no other occasion presents itself, I wear a new dress around the house for an evening. — M.K.P.

DEAR M.K.P. — Your idea is a great one and also gives one a chance to try different accessories and jewelry and decide which look best. Saves getting far from home and then wishing for a certain scarf or necklace that was left behind. — POLLY.

Rich enough to be satisfying as a main dish.

1 cup butter or margarine
1 pound mushrooms, sliced
12 ounces fettucini
1/2 pound Parmesan cheese, grated
1/2 cup heavy cream
1/4 teaspoon freshly grated pepper

In a 10-inch skillet melt 1/2 cup of the butter, add mushrooms and cook rapidly, stirring often, until wilted—about 5 minutes. Cook fettucini as package directs; drain. Stir remaining butter (cut up) into fettucini over low heat, then stir in Parmesan, cream, pepper and mushrooms; re-heat. Makes 6 servings.

Luckily, designers are switching to pretty, traditional colors and styles, partially because of tight money. Consumers can't afford to buy unattractive, one-season items.

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Every once in a while you rerun a column because someone asks for it. I am not only asking — but pleading. It was the column on "How To Break Up A Marriage." It was one of your best — and I need it NOW. — Cliff-Hanger

Dear Cliff: Here it is, with my compliments:
(1) When a son or daughter lets you know they plan to be married, show open hostility to the person of his or her choice. After all, marriage means less love and attention for parents and they have a right to resent it.

(2) Expect your married children to spend every Sunday and holiday at your home. Act hurt if they have other plans.
(3) If your married children have problems with their mates, encourage them to come home, no matter what. Listen attentively to all their complaints. Point out additional faults which may have gone unobserved. Remember, a drop of water at a time can wear away a rock — if you keep at it long enough.

(4) If your married children are having financial problems, rush in with the checkbook. If you are having financial problems yourself, borrow, if necessary, in order to help them, but let them know they will never have to do without anything so long as you are around.

(5) If a married child has a drinking problem, keep telling him his mate drove him to it. It will make him feel better. Everyone needs someone to blame.

(6) If your married child gets an opportunity for advancement which takes him to another city, tell him family is more important than money and if he leaves, God will punish him for not obeying the commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother."

(7) If there are grandchildren, smother them with gifts. If the parents object, tell them to keep out of it. After all, grandchildren are to spoil. Sneak money to the kids secretly if you have to. They'll love you for it.

(8) Whenever your married son and daughter visit with their children, make a point of how thin and tired the kids look. Get across the message that you don't have a very high opinion of the way your beloved grandchildren are being cared for. Intimate that the mother's neglect is detrimental to the health of the youngsters. Ask repeatedly what they eat and why it is that they have so many colds. If the kid breaks a tooth or is injured during play, get all the details and place the blame on lack of supervision.

(9) If your son has a button off his shirt or if his shirt isn't ironed as well as you used to do it when he lived at home, say something. Also mention the hole in his sock or the spot on his coat. It could fan the flame of self-pity and start the final fight that will end up in the divorce court.

(10) If your married child has a difference of opinion with his mate, get into the act and give them both a sample of your wisdom born of years of experience. What do THEY know? You've lived! If you talk loud enough, maybe you can turn a minor argument into a major hassle and break up the marriage. The divorce lawyers from coast to coast are sure to love you for it.

Unit members meet with Mrs. McKune

Mrs. Peter McKune and her co-hostess, Mrs. George Lenox, recently entertained the Dixon Evening Homemakers Extension Unit.

Mrs. George Holland, unit chairman, presided during a business meeting when 19 members and three guests, Mrs. Viola Heckert, Franklin Grove; Mrs. Donald McWethy and Mrs. Donald Giese, answered roll call by describing the things they were worried about at this time last year.

A report was given by Mrs. Howard Morey, and Mrs. Charles Nix reported on activities planned for the 4-H Smileys Club, a group sponsored by the unit. Mrs. Russell Burnell requested that membership dues be forwarded to her by March 1, and Mrs. Edward Fane stated that a recent workshop on needlepoint and crewel embroidery conducted for the unit by Miss Mary Dixon, was attended by 22 women. The workshop was held with Mrs. Sheldon Bross, and Mr. Bross demonstrated ways to properly frame needlework pieces. The next workshop was scheduled for Feb. 18 with Mrs. Holland.

Mrs. Elmer Berger, first vice chairman, led a discussion on the selection of programs for the coming year, and Mrs. Clarence Bush presented a major lesson on "Low-Cost Protein Meals," which can add variety to menus and help ease the strain on the food budget.

Mrs. Bush suggested ways to put protein into meatless meals; ways to prepare food better, and ways food extenders could be used with meat. She prepared and served a meat loaf, another meat loaf with extender, a cheese-bread rarebit and a cheese and rice casserole.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses from a table trimmed with pink and white spring decorations, and the next meeting will be with Mrs. David Evans, who will be assisted by Mrs. Harry Dean and Mrs. Colin Schroeder.

Combine apples and sausage

By AILEEN CLAIRE
Apples are always in season and are among our most versatile fruits. Apples and pork have been a favorite combination in many countries since the tart-sweet flavor of the fruit is a perfect complement for the meat. For an even slightly different approach combine apples and sausage and spice this with curry powder for an Apple-Sausage Curry. Serve with bread or over steamed rice.

APPLE-SAUSAGE CURRY
1 pound pork link sausages
1 cup water
1 10 1/2-ounce can chicken-rice soup
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon curry powder
2 tablespoons water
1/4 teaspoon sugar
3 apples, cored, pared and cut into chunks

Heat skillet to 350 degrees and brown sausage, pouring off fat as it accumulates. Add water, return to simmer and blend in chicken soup. When soup begins to bubble, reduce heat and simmer, covered, about 5 minutes. Combine cold milk with cornstarch, curry powder, water and sugar to form a thin paste. Stir into soup mixture and bring to a boil. Add apple chunks and simmer, covered, about 5 to 10 minutes or until tender. Serve over crusty French bread, steamed rice or English muffin. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Create an original container

The types of containers that can be used for house plants are practically limitless. The traditional clay pot is becoming scarce and more expensive due to the increased interest in indoor plants. The next most popular commercial container is the round plastic pot that drains into an attached dish. They are very practical for hanging plants.

Increasing in popularity but not so wise is the clear plastic pot — decorative but not healthy for the plant. Roots grow in the dark under the earth. Nature planned it that way and the system works very well. In a clear plastic pot when the roots grow up around the outside edge of the pot, they are exposed to light which can cause root damage.

You can create your own planters by experimenting with any containers you have around the house — old cups with broken handles, water pitchers, cracked tea pots, fruit molds, coffee cans, old pots, etc. You are limited only by your imagination.

Knit first flowers of spring

By JUDY LOVE

Announce spring's arrival with flowers — knitted into a super sweater. This week's design is a versatile crew neck with a Scandinavian scallop-and-flower yoke. The scallop is repeated on the sleeve for an extra-feminine touch.

Intermediate knitters will find this project fairly easy. It's a basic stockinette stitch with ribbed borders. You'll find a bit of a challenge in handling the two-color design.

You'll need medium weight yarn like Coats and Clark's "Red Heart" knitting worsted. It works up fast and is easy to care for. We did the scallop design in devil red and dark olive on an eggshell background. You might want to use pastels for a more springy look. One pair of No. 8 needles and one of No. 10's should keep you in stitches.

Slip this happy sweater over a pair of pants for a fresh way to greet the new season. Instructions for sizes (Misses) 6-16 can be ordered by sending 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, c/o Dixon Evening Telegraph, Radio City Station, Box 503, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for leaflet S4114 and be sure to enclose your name, address and zip code.

A SCANDINAVIAN scallop-and-flower yoke accents this spring sweater which even intermediate knitters will find easy to make. Match up this new crew-neck style with a matching, blousy beret.

about that. In that particular situation the high-card play should be reserved to show the queen, not the number.

East also explained that he had decided that South held three small spades, seven trumps and no clubs.

East was really wrong in that last thought. With seven trumps, a void suit and only eight high-card points, South would not have opened one heart. He would have made a preemptive bid if he did not pass. The actual deception had been that East deceived himself.

Foot-long whales in great demand

FULTON, Ill. (AP) — A Fulton resident is selling something not commonly found on the Midwestern prairies—whales.

Mrs. Marie Van Kampen operates a shop that sells whales which grow to about a foot long.

"I think people just want something different in their tanks," she said. "That's what they say when they come in, anyway."

The whales are grayish green mammals that thrive in fresh water aquariums. They must surface and breathe oxygen from the air, just like their mammoth counterparts in the ocean.

In contrast, fish get oxygen from the water through their gills.

The whales are known as "baby whales" and do not reproduce in captivity. Mrs. Van Kampen estimates they are about eight months old when purchased and can live from 15 to 18 years.

They are about three inches long when sold.

"The ones we have come primarily from the Amazon River area in South America," Mrs. Van Kampen said.

The baby whales and fish can get along in the same tank, though sometimes there's a problem adjusting, says Mrs. Van Kampen.

Sometimes large fish will attack the small whales. And it's not unusual to see one whale chasing another in the same tank.

Business in the whales is brisk. One recent shipment all but sold out within a few days.

As if the whales were not enough, Mrs. Van Kampen says she's also looking for something else for aquariums: lions.

"I'd like to get some lion fish," she said. "They're not like whales, which make no noise."

"When you tap the side of a lion fish's tank, it'll roar right at you."

Indians reject pleas, continue occupation

GRESHAM, Wis. (AP) — A militant band of Indians maintained its stubborn occupation of a religious estate today, rejecting tribal elders' pleas to end the 31-day-old affair.

Under increasing pressure from angry white residents to forcibly evict the Menominee Warrior Society, the National Guard announced a broad increase in its manpower surrounding the besieged property.

Ted Boyd, chairman of the Menominee Peoples Committee which serves as a tribal liaison for the demonstrators, said efforts would continue in hope of persuading the young men to accept a settlement.

"We plan to go in and talk some more with them this weekend," Boyd said.

Shawano County white persons scheduled a protest rally today in Gresham.

Boyd's committee scheduled an afternoon tribal meeting in nearby Keshena, the Menominee headquarters community.

Col. High M. Simonson, Guard commander, said the tense situation made him decide to expand his force of 300 Guardsmen to 750, at least for the weekend.

He said his intelligence reports indicate the number of militants in the encircled 64-room unused abbey have increased from 25-30 Warriors to 40 or more.

The Guard had asked the Society to end the occupation by noon Friday.

The deadline passed unheeded. Simonson declined to say what new tactics might be used to encourage an end to the affair.

"I am not as optimistic today about a peaceful settlement as I have been," Simonson said. "We cannot continue under the existing rules, the present policy."

Asked if he would use force to keep white agitators from attacking the estate, he said: "Our policy has been and will be that we will fire only if fired upon. We will protect anyone who is fired upon."

Asked if he might eventually issue an ultimatum to demonstrators, he said: "I guess there will have to be some time," without elaborating.

The white Concerned Citizens committee met privately Friday with Simonson, reporting it told him citizens may intervene with firearms.

"We can no longer control them," committee spokesman Ed Hill said. "Everybody is fed up with the Guard's easygoing approach to this."

The Guard has maintained the ceasefire perimeter since Jan. 7. There have been nighttime outbursts of gunfire in the dense woods around the mansion, and one demonstrator was reported Monday to have been wounded in the leg.

The Guard denies firing any shots, and says it does not know who has been responsible for the sporadic gunfire.

Dist. Atty. Richard Stadelman of Shawano County and Sheriff Robert Montour told the Guard in a statement later Friday they were fearful of a clash between armed whites and Guardsmen. They said they "could well understand the frustrations of local citizens."

The Menominee Restoration Committee, the elected tribal authority, said residents of adjoining Menominee County similarly are fearful of life and property because of intra-tribal friction emanating from the takeover.

The committee said its sheriff cannot even find enough volunteers willing to be deputies, and that the tribal leaders have hired private security agents to help patrol homes and buildings.

The committee has censured the Society's takeover tactics, saying the demonstrators' sympathizers represent less than 10 per cent of the estimated 2,500 Menominee.

The American Indian Movement invited clergymen throughout the nation to gather in Shawano County for what it called moral encouragement for a nonviolent solution.

Among notables responding were actor Marlon Brando and civil rights activist priest James E. Groppi of Milwaukee.

The Society evicted a caretaker and seized the unused abbey New Year's Day. The Society said the Chicago-based Alexian Brothers, a Roman Catholic order, should lease or donate the estate as an Indian health center or school as symbolic compensation for land lost under treaties.

The Guard said new troops arriving during the weekend include units from Appleton, Ripon, Waupun, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh and Berlin.

About 50 Indians and college age white sympathizers marched Friday for an hour along snow coated roads from Keshena to a roadblock near the estate.

Marchers, led by AIM Executive Director Dennis Banks, pushed past about 20 Guardsmen and State Highway Patrolmen without incident, and went only 50 yards further to hold a rally.

Banks said the incident was simply to show that the Society's supporters want no violence.

But it also showed, he said, that a mob of militant whites could also brush through the Guard's meandering backroads perimeter and cause havoc if it got within rifle range of the estate.

The Friday noon deadline had been established by the Alexian Brothers concerning its offer of further negotiating a lease if demonstrators agreed to a prompt end of the occupation.

Hurricane rips Fiji

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — Winds of 140 miles an hour from Hurricane Val destroyed several villages in the Lau islands in eastern Fiji today.

The hurricane was centered near Ogea south of the Lau islands.

High winds forced islanders living in thatched huts to take shelter in caves, churches and shops as the hurricane ripped through the chain of small islands from the north.

The Fiji government's emergency services committee in Suva said it had no estimate of damage. Radio contact with many islands in the area was lost today.

Reports from islands on the fringe of the storm indicated damage to homes and crops could be severe.

The weather bureau at Nadi International Airport said the hurricane was 200 miles southeast of Suva and moving slowly southwards out of the Fiji group.

Oregon board to discuss bids

OREGON—A special meeting for the Board of Education of District 220 is planned for Tuesday in the Etnyre Middle School when board members will reconsider bids on the Health and Life Safety program.

At the last board meeting, members voted to introduce the Health and Life Safety program at Jefferson School and High School. Bids were offered by the Mighell Construction Co., and the Odling Construction Co.

A difference in the understanding of the bids made it necessary to reconsider the bids in the presence of Robert Moehle, school attorney, and a person from the Orputs office.

Rains hit South

By The Associated Press
Heavy rain soaked sections of the South again today as wet and mild weather continued from Texas to the Middle Atlantic States.

Three inches of rain swamped Eldorado, Ark., through Friday, most of it falling during the evening. A flash-flood watch was in effect in southern Arkansas.

More than 2 inches dropped into Dallas-Fort Worth, Tex. Rains in excess of an inch also hit parts of Mississippi. Drizzle dampened most of the southern Plains and rain spilled eastward from the middle Mississippi Valley to the central Atlantic Coast.

Freezing drizzle slowed highway and pedestrian travel in central portions of Missouri and Illinois. Fog again blanketed much of the Gulf Coast and parts of the Tennessee Valley.

In the West, travel advisories remained in effect through the mountains of northern and central California and western Oregon due to blowing snow. Gale warnings flew along the northern and central Pacific Coast.

Snow also sifted into the western Great Lakes and northern fringes of the Plains.

Fair weather was scarce, limited mostly to the Southwest outside Texas and scattered sections of the Southeast.

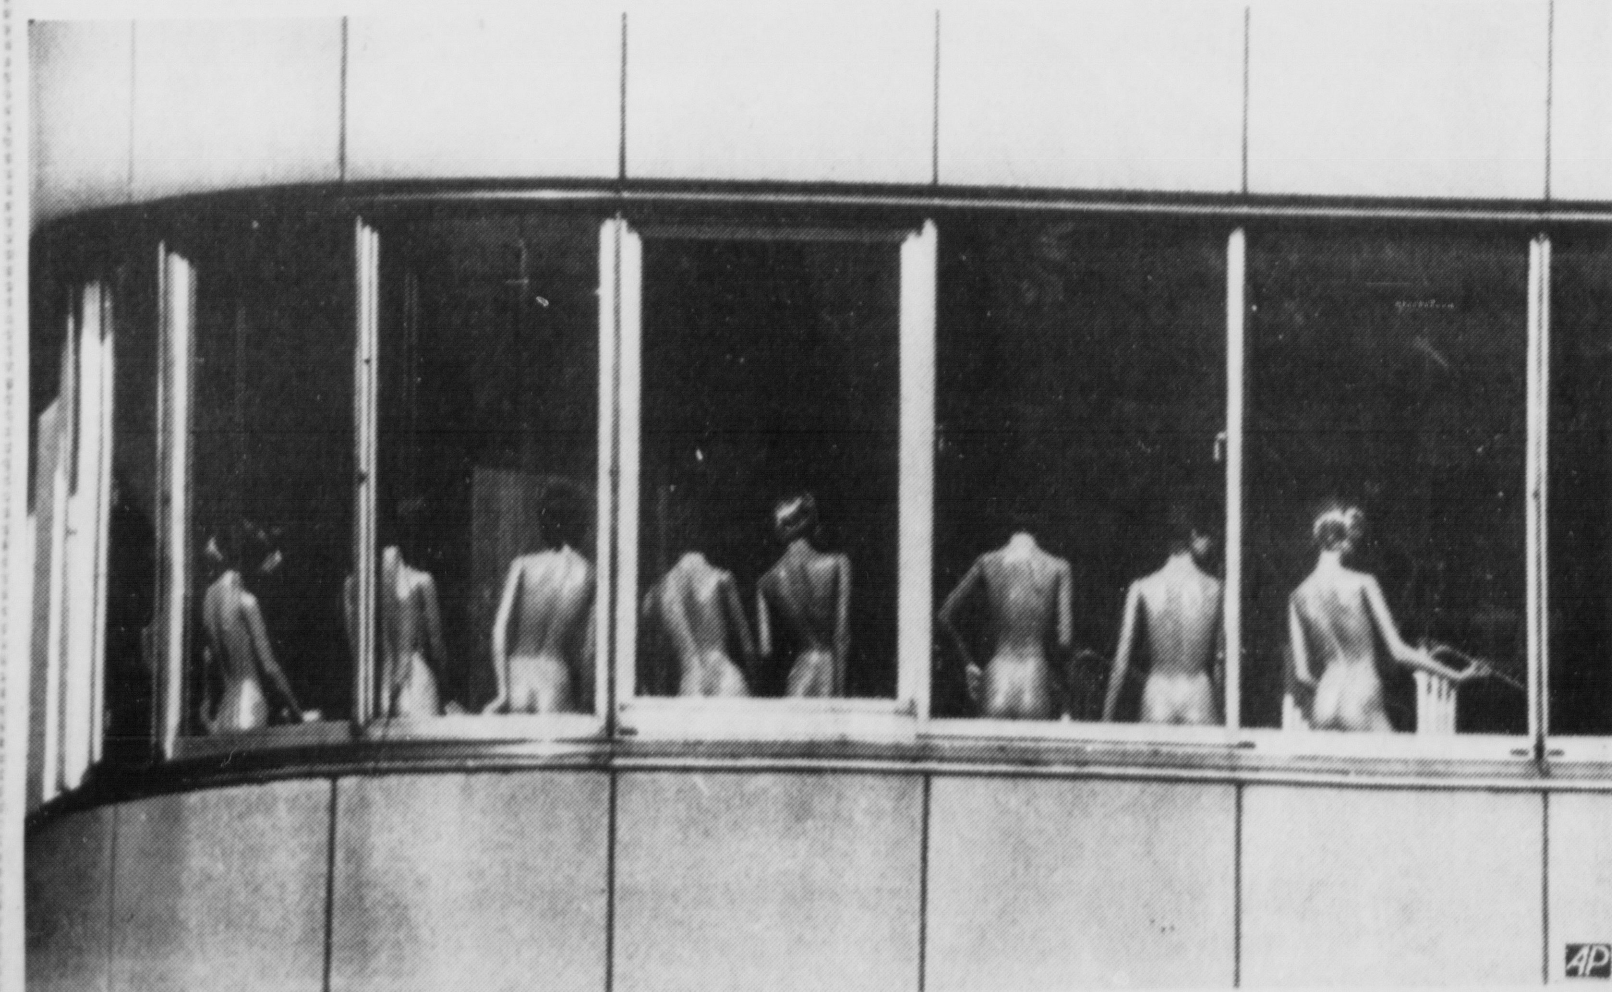

Temperatures in the 30s and 40s dominated most of the rainy regions during the night. Severe cold was confined to northern New England and the northern Rockies.

Readings before dawn ranged from -16 at Bozeman, Mont., to 75 in McAllen, Tex.

Some other reports: Anchorage -1 partly cloudy, Atlanta 53 clear, Boston 28 cloudy, Buffalo 24 cloudy, Chicago 34 cloudy, Cincinnati 36 cloudy, Cleveland 31 cloudy, Dallas 44 light rain, Denver 20 clear, Detroit 28 cloudy, Honolulu 74 partly cloudy, Indianapolis 34 drizzle, Kansas City 27 cloudy, Los Angeles 47 clear, Louisville 40 cloudy, Miami 73 partly cloudy, Minneapolis St. Paul 12 light snow, Nashville 51 drizzle, New York 32 cloudy, Philadelphia 27 clear, Phoenix 49 clear, Pittsburgh 32 freezing rain, St. Louis 32 freezing drizzle, San Francisco 50 partly cloudy, Seattle 34 clear, Washington 38 cloudy.

Navy reduces carrier force

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy reportedly will cut back its aircraft carrier force next year to its smallest size since World War II.

The new Defense budget, which will go to Congress next week, is said to reflect a reduction of three carriers. Likely to go are the 31-year-old Hancock and the nearly 30-year-old Oriskany.

This would leave the Navy with 13 carriers, including one used for training.

Adm. James L. Holloway III, chief of naval operations, signaled this development Thursday when he told a San Diego audience that surface warships will carry a larger share of the sea-control mission "with the reduction of carrier force levels."

Holloway did not elaborate and the Navy refused to comment. Other Pentagon sources provided some details.

These sources said the carrier cutback and some other fleet reductions in prospect result largely from inflationary pressures on military spending.

The Navy already has scaled down ship steaming time and flying hours, mostly in training. It also has delayed some ship and aircraft overhaul.

Holloway said the fleet will dip below 500 ships next year, roughly half what it was about seven years ago.

In general, the Navy has retired or scrapped older ships and applied these funds to building new ships and modernizing others. The net effect will be a smaller but more up-to-date fleet, planners believe.

The carrier force reduction, even with two big new nuclear-powered ships due to be commissioned within the next couple of years, raises questions as to whether the Navy can continue to keep as many carriers as it now has on station abroad.

It strengthens the possibility that the Navy may decide to maintain only one carrier, instead of the present two, in the Mediterranean.

Prospects for a change in the three-carrier deployment in the Far East are uncertain, although the increasing importance placed on U.S. naval cruises in the Indian Ocean seems to work against any curtailment.

High court leaves bail to the judge

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A state law denying bail to persons accused of murder, aggravated kidnapping or treason is unconstitutional, says the Illinois Supreme Court.

The court said Thursday in a decision written by Justice Howard Ryan that the question of bail should be left entirely to the courts.

Courts have the inherent power to deny or revoke bail, but such action should be taken only if there is sufficient evidence to show the defendant will interfere with witnesses, fulfill threats or not appear for trial if released, the court said.

In another decision, the court urged the Illinois General Assembly to pass legislation implementing a constitutional provision guaranteeing criminal defendants a prompt preliminary hearing.

The ruling came in the case of a St. Clair County man, Johnny Howell, who was held in jail for 65 days without a preliminary hearing.

The court refused to overturn the man's eventual conviction on armed robbery charges, citing "overwhelming evidence of guilt."

But it said, "We consider the delays in giving an accused a prompt preliminary hearing to be a serious deprivation of his constitutional rights and we are deeply concerned about the number of cases in which an accused has not had a prompt probable cause determination."

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — After being "treated" for a duodenal ulcer for nine years my doctor tells me my X rays show no scarring from ulcers but I do have a hiatal hernia. Are they so similar in symptoms and discomfort?

DEAR READER — You don't have to have a scar that you can see on an X ray after you have had an ulcer. So the presence of a hiatal hernia now doesn't mean you may not have had an ulcer.

Not everyone with a hiatal hernia has symptoms. Many people with hiatal hernias don't even know they have the problem. Most of the symptoms are caused by the acid digestive juice in the stomach leaking or being squirted back into the lower esophagus. This acid juice can burn the lower esophagus and cause the burning pain in the pit of the stomach just at the lower tip of the breastbone that patients complain about.

The same acid digestive juice produced in excess quantity and squirted out into the duodenum can cause an ulcer there. So, in fact, the acid digestive juice can cause an ulcer in the duodenum, with burning and pain, or it can cause irritation and even an ulcer in the lower esophagus, in relation to a hiatal hernia.

Our bodies are not so good at presenting black and white and "either-or" situations. The pain and location of an irritated lower esophagus or the duodenum are not so specific that you can always be sure which is the problem or for that matter if both conditions are present at the same time.

There is a lot you need to know about the management of a hiatal hernia. Small frequent meals are important, as well as what you eat, rules about clothing, sleeping, and exercise.

Part of the treatment of both ulcers and hiatal hernia symptoms are the same. Since symptoms from both problems are largely caused by the acid digestive juice formed by the stomach, it is important to neutralize stomach acid. The antacids used for this purpose work equally well for both conditions.

Medicine is sometimes used to block the nerves to the stomach to prevent it from forming so much acid. These are very good for most cases of ulcers. Their use is questionable in the treatment of hiatal hernia symptoms. They may delay the emptying of the stomach allowing the stomach contents to leak back into the lower esophagus.

Actually these medicines may not be all bad in hiatal hernia, if they effectively decrease the amount of acid produced by the stomach, even if they do delay stomach emptying.

The stomach itself is protected from the digestive action of its own juices by a thick mucus material over its lining. The duodenum and esophagus don't have this protection and that is why the acid digestive juices irritate or ulcerate them.

Third conference victory in row Dixon holds on to defeat Kewanee

By MIKE CUNIFF
Telegraph Sports Editor
KEWANEE — Dick Franklin, Dixon head varsity basketball coach, beamed, and stated, "We've now got a three-game winning streak. It certainly isn't the best we can play but as poor as we did, it is still a win and that's okay."

Franklin's comment postdated the Dixon Dukes' 77-70 victory over the Kewanee Boilemakers, here, Friday in an NCIC game to push the Dukes' conference record above .500 for the season. Dixon is now 4-3 with the three consecutive victories and the Dukes' overall mark improves to 4-12.

Kewanee Is 1-6
Kewanee falls to 1-6 and 2-14, respectively. The Purple-and-White had a lead of eight points in the first quarter, 10 towards the end of the third frame and nine with 6:04 to go but the Boilemakers then swished eight successive points to trim the Duke advantage to 63-62 with 4:01 left.

The margin fluctuated between one and five points the rest of the way with Kewanee's Andy Dearing's field goal making it 71-70 with 1:09 left but the Dukes put in the final six markers as Steve Breitka hit a basket, Dave Moody converted three free throws and Jim Edwards swished a charity toss.

Three Dixon players scored in double figures with forwards Moody netting 20 and Ned Vail 18, along with 19 by center Breitka. The trio had 28 of the Dukes' 38 points in the first half and dropped home 29 of 39 in the second 16 minutes.

Dukes Are Behind
The Dukes fell behind early 4-0 as Vail and Breitka missed field goal attempts and Kewanee got two-pointers from Tom Sullivan and Andy Dearing. Moody put Dixon on the board with a 10-footer from an out-of-bounds play but the Boilemakers got a couple of shots the next time down the floor before

Jeff Anderson was fouled. Anderson dropped in both free throw chances with 5:56 left but Kewanee then went over three minutes without a point. The Dukes rallied to take the lead as Vail assisted on two baskets by Breitka and canned a pair of his own, one on a length-of-the-floor drive after a steal.

The Boilemakers then put together a bucket and two free throws by 6'9" sophomore center Tom Prusator to deadlock the game at 10-10. Momentum switched back to Dixon as Dave Zinnen netted a pair of charity tosses, Moody dumped in a pair of buckets (one on an assist to Vail) and Breitka hit a fall-away jumper from 10 feet.

Prusator Hooks
A hook shot by Prusator, an offensive rebound by Brad Cernovich and a free throw by Anderson sliced the Dukes' lead to 18-15 at the end of the quarter. Dixon padded its margin with a 20-17 advantage in the second frame as Moody had two baskets and a solitary charity toss, Vail connected on a driving lay-up and tipped in a miss by Zinnen along with four points by Greg Weigle, two on a drive after a steal on an in-bounds pass.

Prusator was removed just eight seconds into the frame but the loss of height when 6'1" senior Steve Nosalik entered was more than offset by a quartet of buckets Nosalik zeroed in during the quarter. He missed his first shot but then swished four in a row to help the Boilemakers assume a 27-25 lead.

The Dukes outscored Kewanee 11-4 in the final three minutes of the half as four different players got points. Dixon was seven for 14 from the floor in the quarter while the Boilemakers connected on eight attempts in 21 shots.

Vail Scores
Breitka won the tip to begin the last half and the Dukes took advantage of the chance as Vail threaded a 15-foot jump shot to make it 40-32. The teams then exchanged points as Moody fired in three buckets while Cernovich hit the same number for the home team.

Moody's brace of free throws made it 50-42 and Vail then tipped in left-handed a Moody failure. Cernovich came back with a 20-footer before Vail popped in a basket from the free throw line. Dearing and Sullivan put buckets together to trim the Dixon lead to 54-48.

Weigle made the margin seven with a charity toss before Cernovich dropped in his fifth basket of the quarter with a 15-footer with :45 to go. Breitka pushed off on the play and Kewanee was awarded the ball out of bounds. Mike Mikenas netted a two-point just nine seconds later and the Duke lead had shrunk to three (55-52).

Short Range
Jim Edwards, who entered when Zinnen picked up his fourth personal with 2:42 left, got a basket from short range with :08 left and the margin increased to five. It became seven as Edwards bounced a pass of Cernovich's head to Vail for a break-away lay-up to begin the final quarter.

Prusator, out for the last two minutes of the third frame because of foul trouble, hooked in a basket before Breitka put in his second attempt (Prusator blocked the first one) to give the Dukes a 61-54 advantage.

Vail stole an outlet pass and pumped home a bucket and Dixon had a nine-point margin with 6:04 remaining. The Dukes then were blanked for two minutes. Kwanee utilized the span to bolt back into contention as Cernovich dropped home a basket and two free throws, Sullivan was successful twice at the charity stripe and Mikenas twined a jumper from 15 feet to the left of the hoop.

Pressure Trap
The Boilemakers then put on a press with a trap and the Dixon guards could not find the open man. Breitka was wide open on three occasions deep but no one could get him the ball. Zinnen came in for Weigle with 4:22 left and promptly converted two free throws to make it 65-62.

Cernovich assisted on a short range basket by Sullivan before Breitka got the ball down low and laid it in for two points. Edwards then drove for a basket but fouled Sullivan on the play. Sullivan's pair of free throws made it 69-66 with 3:02 to go.

The Dukes worked the ball around trying to kill the clock before Zinnen missed a driving shot. Breitka got the board and was fouled. His two charity tosses made the spread five points. Dearing then sandwiched a pair of baskets around a kicking the ball violation on Dixon to make it 71-70 with 1:09 left on the clock.

Kewanee Misses
Breitka hit a pressure shot from close range just seven seconds later and Kewanee missed two chances to pull back. Moody was fouled by Dearing on the second rebound and hit one of two free throws to give the Dukes a 74-70 lead. Breitka then blocked a Mikenas attempt. Edwards was fouled and made one charity toss before Moody ended the scoring with a pair of shots from the charity stripe.

"Edwards really kept his head," Franklin stated, "and I'm very happy for him. He hasn't gotten to play that much." Franklin also commented why the Dukes had trouble in the final quarter hitting the open man long. "It's just one of those things," he said. "You've got to look at a guy to see him and you have a (defensive) guy on you, it's hard to see sometimes; like a short quarterback trying to pass the ball."

The Purple-and-White finished with 29 of 60 field goal attempts for 49 per cent. Vail was nine of 18, Moody eight of 17 and Breitka seven for 12. Kewanee had the same number of hoops but took 71 shots to do it. The Boilemakers' percentage of accuracy was 41. Sullivan was six of 15, Dearing had the same number of baskets in 18 shots and Cernovich was seven for 16.

Rebound Figures.
Breitka pulled down 17 rebounds to pace the Dukes. Seven of the boards were at the offensive end. Moody and Vail had four offensive and six defensive rebounds apiece. Sullivan led the losers with 17 points. Cernovich had one less while Dearing got a dozen. Kewanee missed only one free throw while converting a dozen. Dixon is idle tonight and gets back into NCIC action next Friday at Ottawa.

Clippers fall 59-53

SOUTH BELOIT— The Amboy Clippers scored only 33 points in the first three quarters, here, Friday night and dropped a 59-53 Shark Conference decision to the South Beloit Sobos. It was the second consecutive Shark loss for the Clippers and dropped their conference record to 6-3.

"We were ahead 33-29 in the third quarter," Gary Croegaert, Amboy head varsity coach, commented, "and then we scored four points in the next eight minutes. Finally, we were down by 15 when I put in the second string and they did a heck of a job and got it down to six before time ran out."

"But I was very disappointed in our first team. We were lethargic and shot extremely poor," Croegaert added. "We had the first team only 16 of 50 from the field and 6 for 14 at the foul line."

South Beloit was 15 for 25 in the second half, including a seven-for-eight performance by John Hereford. All of the buckets were from 15 feet or more. Hereford finished with 19 points to lead all scorers, while Dan Robinson dropped in 15.

Joe Bothe paced the Clippers with 14. Steve Powers got 11. Greg Wilhelm managed six in a reserve role. Amboy was 21 of 58 from the field for 36 per cent, while South Beloit swished 25 buckets in 54 shots for 46 per cent. Amboy is idle tonight and the next Clipper game is Tuesday at home versus Putnam County.

Dies tie Golden Warriors

By TIMOTHY LYON
Telegraph Sports Writer

The tensest match of the season occurred when the Dixon wrestlers met the Sterling Warriors in the dual meet held in Lancaster Gymnasium Friday night. The Dukes fought Sterling down to the last match and the meet finished in a 22-22 tie.

The Dukes managed the tie with four wins and two draws. The key to Dixon's success was a pin by Mike James at 138 and Bob Pinegar at 185. Ray Wilson and Mike Allen each had a decision, and Mike Fritts and Mark Galindo both drew their opponents.

James moved down to 138 for the meet and it paid off as he stuck Doug Miller at 3:42. James had control for most of the match, getting two take-downs in the first period and allowing Miller to escape once. Miller escaped again in the second, but James took him back down and put him in a near fall. Reversing at the start of the third, James put Miller on his back and got the fall.

Pinegar began his contest much the same way, taking Randy Stewart down and allowing him to escape. Neither of the wrestlers could gain any further points in the opening period. Stewart, also, escaped at the start of the second, and was taken back down. Pinegar needed only 30 seconds to stick Stewart at 3:44. Wilson, at 112, was the first Dixon victory. He defeated Mike O'Brien 4-0. Both were pointless in the first period as neither could take the other down. Wilson started his win in the second period when he got a near fall off of O'Brien. He escaped early in the final period and the two fought for a takedown till the end of the match.

The face-off at 167 also had a scoreless first period, as neither Allen or Chuck Musgrove, his Sterling opponent, could get a takedown. Allen began the second period by reversing from the bottom. Musgrove escaped and Allen took him down this time. Musgrove escaped for the second time at the start of third, but Allen took him down again to win 6-2.

Fritts, at 126, tied 5-5 with Barry Depue. Depue gained the initial takedown, but Fritts came back up with an escape. In the second, Fritts put Depue into a near fall but was reversed. Fritts escaped and Depue got a penalty point in the third period.

After Pinegar's pin, which tied the score at 20, Galindo tied Mark Berge, 3-3. The Dixon heavyweight came on strong early as he took Berge down quickly in the first period. He also scored in the second with an escape, but he couldn't get another takedown. Berge came back in the final period as he reversed and was awarded a penalty point.

John Green was defeated 6-3 by Sterling's Doug Schafer in the 98 match. Green had a takedown in the first period, but Schafer escaped. Schafer reversed in the second and Green escaped. Schafer won the match with a third period near fall.

Joe Green, at 105 for Dixon, was downed 7-1 by Mark Metzler. Metzler had takedown in the first period. Green escaped in the second but was taken down again. Metzler scored in the third with an escape, take down and predicament.

One of the closest contests of the meet was the 119 match between Jim Magnafici and Dan McMillon of Sterling. McMillon came on strong in the final period in the so far scoreless match with an escape and takedown to win 3-0.

Tom Cecchetti lost his 132 match, 7-4, to Mike Sanders of Sterling. Cecchetti had an escape and reversal in the opening period, but Sanders went ahead with two take-downs. Cecchetti escaped in the second and was unable to score further. Sanders had an escape and takedown in the third period.

Mel Reglin, 145, beat Randy Hazelwood of Dixon 5-1. Reglin took Hazelwood down at the very end of the first period. Hazelwood was given a penalty point in the second, and Reglin escaped and took the Duke down in the third.

Dixon's last loss was at 155 as Rockford's Derksen fell 5-0 to Greg Musgrove. Musgrove scored with a takedown in the opening period and escaped and got another takedown in the second, while keeping Derksen scoreless.

Bulls win easily

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Al Attles called it a defensive breakdown; Dick Motta called it a good job by the referees.

Whatever it was, it was a National Basketball Association victory for Motta's Chicago Bulls over Attles' Golden State Warriors.

"The fact that we have now lost six in a row on the road makes me sure we have had a defensive breakdown, and I want to know why," Attles said following the Warriors 127-103 loss to the Bulls.

"That's why I kept the locker room closed for 25 minutes" after the game.

Motta said "the big difference was the refs were calling the grabbing and hacking whenever we got a forward inside. And when the refs do their job, there's no way we can lose."

In other NBA games, Boston clobbered Cleveland 121-99, Buffalo defeated Atlanta 111-101. Milwaukee edged Philadelphia 101-97, Washington stopped New Orleans 106-101. Phoenix downed Los Angeles 105-101 and Seattle nipped Portland 106-103.

Defensive lapses and referees aside, Chicago's Jerry Sloan had a lot to do with the outcome. Sloan scored 27 points, including 14 in the final quarter, and grabbed 13 rebounds in the second half to lead the Bulls. The gutsy guard also stole the ball six times as Chicago overcame a 40-point performance by Rick Barry.

"Barry is our big offensive weapon, but that is no reason for me to believe we are a one-man team," Attles said. Barry gathered 13 points in the third period to keep the Warriors in contention. Then much-traveled center Clifford Ray took over Golden State's offense in the final quarter, scoring seven straight points before fouling out, to keep the Bulls from running away.

Then Sloan went to work again. He converted two steals into two quick baskets. After Tom Boerwinkle sank a free throw, Sloan added four more points for a 107-93 Chicago lead.

Sonics 106, Trail Blazers 103
Seattle exploded for 43 points in the final period to overtake Portland.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GOERGE W. CRANE
CASE C-666: David R., aged 48, is song leader for a famous revivalist.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "you lectured at the seminary which I attended."

"And in your address, you warned us about the trap into which Music Directors and many song leaders fall."

"For you said the main purpose of church music is NOT to win merely intellectual admiration from the audience. But is to resurrect lofty emotions and idealistic dreams that have long been 'conditioned' to those familiar tunes. Yet many college trained Music Directors try to impress their audiences with the vocal range and harmonious blending of voices.

"So they select choral arrangements that will show off what you facetiously call their 'melodic pyrotechnics,' even though they leave the congregation cold and unmoved!"

"Well, I began to mull over your remarks, for I noted that the audience are likely to thumb through their church bulletins despite the best efforts of 'pyrotechnical choral arrangements.'"

"So I began to employ choral arrangements that featured good old-fashioned hymns."

"And I avoided the 'fancy' variations that many egotistical composers or arrangers try to insert, to flatter their own vanity."

"For a lot of 'variations' mask the basic melody to the point that the usual church member doesn't even recognize the hymn itself."

"Well, Dr. Crane, when I acted upon your psychological diagnosis of church music, I noted an immediate response."

"People quit whispering or turning the pages of their church bulletins."

"They began focussing on our choir in rapt attention, often with tears in their eyes."

"The clergyman told me I thus was a great aid to him in bringing his congregation up to that emotional climax of his peroration."

"And my success became so evident that I am now assisting a famous revivalist."

"For familiar hymns weld a heterogeneous crowd into a unified homogeneous congregation before the first stanza is completed."

Musical Psychology
Alas, most Music Directors will ignore David's shrewd advice, for they are indoctrinated with a brain-truster type of musical psychology.

They seem to think they gain prestige by use of foreign or unfamiliar lyrics and melodies, in order to show off their melodic pyrotechnics.

Yet musicians should take the same attitude that public speakers adopt!

And we speakers don't try to enthrall an audience by our mere vocal qualities, as tenor or baritone voices, resonance and lilting delivery!

Instead, we focus on the effect we wish to develop in the audience.

Preachers will this recount familiar parables that Jesus gave His vast audiences, yet the crowd relishes such repetition, even in this 20th century.

Speakers also allude to familiar historical and patriotic tales to work up the type of enthusiasm generated by "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

So, will you Music Directors please focus on the ultimate audience effect rather than on your myopic preoccupations with melodic technicalities?

Church attendance is dropping fast because of poor oratory in the public and failure to use familiar hymns!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)
